

NOA Board Member

Cory Robin

Living and working in Timmins Ontario, Cory has been in the finance industry for over 20 years. Holding a 3-year Diploma in Business Administration – Accounting from Northern College, he has successfully leveraged that education in a rewarding career in Indigenous Entrepreneurship spending the last 6 years with Nishnawbe Aski Development Fund managing the Aboriginal Business Financing Program. Cory sits on a several committees and boards relating to economic development, education and community involvement. As a member of Kashechewan First Nation, Cory offers a unique view and brings a different perspective to project he's involved in. Cory lives with his fiancé and 3 children and draws his motivations and inspirations from the bonds that hold our families and communities together.